TOOK IN THE RACES

Wall Street Was Practically Dull Yesterday

Government bonds steady.

Speculation at the stock exchange was extremely dull, the sales of stock amounting to only 45,874 shares. The dullness is explained by the absence of the many speculators at the races and country resorts. Considering the inactivity the temper of speculation was quite firm. The bears in the room bought about a reaction of 4½c, per cent on the heavy falling off in the bullion reserves, but a recovery followed and the market closed firm.

London Grain.

London, June 17.—The grain markets opened this morning with wheat firmer, red winter and California 3d higher, but the advance checks business; corn strong at 1½d advance. Wheat on passage firmer, held higher; corn very firm. The French markets were steady.

LOCAL MARKETS.

SATURDAY, June 17.—Little can be said regarding the grain market here during the past week, further than that it has ruled steady without no notable change in prices. The offerings have been limited and, consequently, transactions small. The market price for wheat—62 cents per bushel—is too low to inspire much enthusiasm among the farmers, and many who have had their wheat locked in their bins for the past two years or more, say they will feed it to their stock or hold it over another year before they will haul it to market at such a ridiculously low price. Corn and oats are dull and prices have undergone no change. Sugars have advanced from 6 to 12 cents per 100 pounds during the week, with the prospect of a still further advance in the near future. A telegram from New York this morning to a leading wholesale grocer announced that there was a big strike on among the hands in all the large refineries and no prices were wired today. The prices of many staples have a downward tendency with, perhaps, the exception of wheat. Wool continues depressed and manufacturers are buying very conservatively. The prevailing stringency in the money markets, credits, etc., has affected the volume of business which otherwise would flow more freely. Old potatoes are fast growing scarce, and at reduced prices. New potatoes are becoming plentiful and the market is well supplied at much reduced rates. Green peas are plentiful and much easier in price. Home grown strawberries are also plentiful and of fine quality at reduced prices. The meat, poultry and fish markets are well supplied at prices quoted. Hay is dull, the supply being fully equal to the demand. All kinds of garden products are in good supply. Below are revised quotations:
